AN INQUIRY IS STARTED TODAY

Most Appalling.

Hull, England, Aug 25.—Official inquiry was begun here today, to fix responsibility for the loss of the world's greatest dirigible, the ZR-2, which lies a mass of charred and tangled wreckage in the Humber river.

The disaster—the most appalling in the history of peace-time aeronautics—was almost instantaneous. The breaking of the girders and the two explosions which broke the back of the giant craft, sending her crashing with the loss of forty-three lives, all occurred within five seconds.

Out of the forty-[illegible] men on board the glorious [illegible] only six escaped, one of them an American, Norman O Walker, a negro, of Commerce, Texas.

From stories told by survivors and the observations of experts the ZR-2 was carrying too much weight for her framework. Several girders are believed to have broken under the strain, penetrating the fuel tanks.

The petrol flowed out and was ignited by the motors, causing the violent explosion. Search of the Humber river and the [illegible] under way for bodies of victims.

An [illegible] may be held later.

The British air ministry was in sole charge of the craft when she was wrecked. She had not yet been turned over to the United States navy department. Her final and fatal trial flight was begun quietly under the direction of British Air Marshal E M Maitland and Lieutenant A H Wann, of the British air service.

Commander L H Maxfield, U S N, who was to have been in charge of the dirigible on her voyage across the Atlantic, was on board as an official observer and inspector.

The horror of the disaster cast a pall over all England.

"The accident happened with terrible suddenness," said Lieutenant Wann—one of the survivors—today lay in the hospital [illegible]

"The ship was doing beautifully. We had been up since [illegible] Tuesday [illegible] ed with the smoothness of the [illegible] ing parts. Suddenly there was a violent crack and I [illegible] of the girders [illegible] Then came the explosion. Girders Break.

"The ship had passed over the coast from the North sea and was going at a high rate of speed. I was in the afterpart of the craft, near the rudder. As we passed over Hull, the controls were being tested and apparently everything was safe and sound. Then came the disaster and it came with awful suddenness. I think that one or more girders amidships must have broken or buckled. There was a series of sharp shocks and the craft began to fall swiftly, nose first.

"As we started down, the petrol tank exploded with a loud roar and a burst of fire. I was thrown down by the shock and instantly realized that the ZR-2 was doomed. There was a parachute nearby and I had sufficient presence of mind to seize the rope and go overboard."

All the stories agreed that the ZR-2 first buckled and then blew up. There was no sign of smoke, fire or explosion [illegible] after the craft's back broke and she began to sag downward.

Charles Harrison Brown of the United States air force, who was an eye witness of the disaster was one of the first to reach the wreckage in the river.

"The first intimation that I had that something was wrong was the peculiar movements of the ship," said Brown. "I saw her nose go down and I knew that something had happened for the craft would [illegible] I kept staring at the dirigible and it [illegible] than two minutes afterward that I saw her break in two. The parts shot downward into the Humber. As quickly as I could I procured a tugboat and made for the wreckage which was [illegible] and floating in the water. He had not noticed the sagging of the ship because of his position. Immediately after flames appeared, there came the roar of two almost instantaneous explosions. The ship collapsed in the center and the wreckage began falling with the gondolas spinning around like tops and a long comet-like tail of smoke and fire hanging out behind.

According to the British district naval intelligence office at this port the ZR-2, was 1,000 feet in the air when she buckled, caught fire and blew up. Despite her great height, it took the blazing wreckage less than two minutes to reach the surface of the river. There was a tremendous splash, a spurt of smoke and steam and then the spectators on the shore who had been held spellbound by the tragic and spectacular sight gave a cry of horror.

An officer of the British naval intelligence office gave the following version of the tragedy.

"The ship was traveling rapidly and smoothly about 1,000 feet up when suddenly and so far as I could see, without any previous warning, there was a terrific explosion. Before the roar had died away, there was a second explosion.

Flying Debris.

"Through the smoke and flame I could see flying debris from the body of the craft. Then the ship's back broke and she went into two pieces. It was a terrible moment, a terrible war scene. The forward parts began falling with great speed, but the envelope seemed for an instant to hang in the air. Within two minutes of the first detonation the wreckage fell into the Humber. I could not see the after portion, gondola as the wreckage came down and concluded that it had been blown to atoms by the blast."

General Brock Popham, director of staff of the British air ministry and G Cockburn chief of the accidents department of the air ministry accompanied by their staffs have arrived here to institute a board of inquiry. PRESIDENT MAY SEND SOLDIERS

In Response To Request from Governor Morgan.

THE WEST VIRGINIA SITUATION IS TENSE

Armed Bands Forming Throughout State and an Insurrection Is Threatened.

Washington, Aug 25.—President Harding is now considering the question of sending United States troops into West Virginia, as the result of a request from Governor Morgan, of that state, it was announced at the war department this afternoon.

Governor Morgan declared that armed bands are forming throughout West Virginia, that they are moving on Charleston and "armed insurrection threatens."

The president today conferred on the situation with Acting Secretary of War Wainwright and Major General Harbord, chief of staff.

Major General Harbord has ordered Brigadier General Bandholz and Colonel Stanley H. Ford to West Virginia, by aeroplane, at once to render a report on the advisability of despatching federal troops to maintain peace. The action of the president will be withheld pending receipt of a report from General Bandholz, which probably will be received tonight.

The war department announced later that it had been found impossible for General Bandholz to make the trip to West Virginia by aeroplane and he was instructed to leave, this afternoon, by train.

Governor Morgan, in his appeal for troops, stated that while there has been no outbreak as yet, that the armed forces are increasing in strength and the situation appears to be serious. Armed men have held up automobiles and trains and demanded free transportation, the governor declared and there has been constant report of pillaging for foodstuffs in the line of march of the armed men.

Governor Morgan, in his appeal for troops, stated that while there had been no outbreaks as yet, that the armed forces were steadily advancing. He stated that not less than 1,000 troopers be sent into Charleston and vicinity by the government.

It was announced that Major General Reed, in command of the fifth corps area with headquarters at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, has been instructed to issue orders for the troops to move into West Virginia.

Within a very short time, transportation will be ready and the troops will be prepared to leave Fort Benjamin Harrison upon notification from Washington.

General Bandholz will remain in West Virginia to command the troops if he reports in favor of the dispatch of federal forces to the threatened area.

Force at Racine.

Racine, West Virginia, Aug. 25.—A force of armed miners, reliably estimated at from 4,000 to 5,000, have reached here on their way to Mingo county, for the announced purpose of breaking down martial law declared there several months ago by Governor E. F. Morgan.

The army reached here in the morning hours, but shortly after noon went into camp on Indian creek. Leaders among the miners said they were taking a brief rest before resuming their march.

In Boone County.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 25.—The sheriff's office at Logan, West Virginia, at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon, informed the International News service that the miners' army moving from Marmet to Mingo county had not entered Logan City and that last reports were to the effect that the marchers were in Boone county.

The sheriff's office reported everything quiet at Logan, this afternoon and that the earlier excitement had died down.

"We have nothing further to give out," was the concluding statement over the long-distance telephone.

BASEBALL

Pan-Handle Team Next.

At the request of many of the local baseball fans and through much effort and a big expense, the management of the Marion Daily Stars was successful in booking the Pan-Handle baseball club, of Columbus, to meet the local team at Lincoln park, Sunday.

The Pan-Handle shop has always been represented in baseball and football by high class teams and the team this season is claimed to be up to the standard, if not better, than the teams of past years. They have several players who have had professional experience in the sport and have only been playing the best teams, this season. The local team will put forth its best effort and the game will be a real test for the Daily Stars. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock and the contest will no doubt bring out all the loyal fans.

MASCOT KITTEN LOSES ITS LIFE

Hull, Aug. 25.—There was one casualty on the ZR-2 which was not listed in the official death roll. It was Columbus, the mascot kitten and the pet of the whole crew. The kitten was to have been taken along on the flight across the Atlantic.

DEPRESSION IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY

Declared Worst in Experience of Forty Years.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The depression in the steel industry was described as the worst in forty years, with consequent unemployment of 200,000 men, by John A. Topping, of New York City, head of an iron and steel company, before the senate finance committee, today.

Topping and other steel men opposed the duties on raw materials used in the manufacturers of steel proposed by the Fordney tariff bill, which the New Yorker declared would add a total of $24,000,000 annually to steel costs.

FIGHT AGAINST SEA DESCRIBED

Man's Struggle for Mastery of Deep and Air.

DEVELOPMENT SINCE CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

Some Daring Exploits and Grave Sacrifices That Advancement May Be Made.

New York, Aug 25.—Plans for the ZR-2 recalled the various attempts made to cross the Atlantic, beginning with the voyage of Christopher Columbus in 1492 and culminating in the successful flight of the R-34 in July two years ago. The latter has been called the apex of man's four centuries of struggle to master the elements and mysteries of ocean and air.

Eleven years ago, in September, 1910, the ocean greyhound, Mauretania, steamed from Southampton, England, to New York in four days, ten hours and forty-one minutes, a sea record that never has been broken. June 14, 1919, Captain John Alcock and Whitten Brown, British aviators, started from St. Johns, Newfoundland, in a biplane and flew across the Atlantic, 1,900 miles on that route, landing at Clifden, Ireland, the next day after sixteen hours and twelve minutes in the air. Alcock was killed in an air mishap the following December in France. The R-34's time was 108 hours and twelve minutes. Columbus was seventy days in reaching San Salvador from Palos, Spain.

For more than 300 years, dating from the time of Columbus, ocean navigation made little progress. The same method of propulsion that drove the Pinta, Nina and Santa Maria across "the great and unknown deep," sail power, was in universal use until 1819, when the American steamship Savannah, propelled by steam, demonstrated a new mode of travel between Europe and America.

Century Later.

It was just 100 years after the sailing of the Savannah that the three successful air flights over the wide expanse of the Atlantic were achieved, one in a hydroairplane, another in a biplane, and, finally, the third in a dirigible balloon. The hydroairplane, known as the NC-4, one of four United States naval machines, in charge of Lieutenant Commander Albert C Read, left Trepassey, Newfoundland, May 16, 1919, and reached Horta, in the Azores, in fifteen hours and eighteen minutes, having traversed the 1,200 miles at an average speed of 78.4 knots. Later it flew to Portugal.

Prior to the three successful flights alluded to, previous attempts had been made to negotiate "the big pond" through the air. The earliest of these was made by Walter Wellman, American journalist and explorer, and Melvin Vaniman, October 15, 1910, in a dirigible balloon called the "America." They started from Atlantic City, New Jersey, with a crew of four men, including an Englishman, an Australian and two Americans. Their objective was any point on the coast of England, Ireland or France to which the wind might carry them.

In Mid-Sea.

After having been in the air three days and nights, sailing 1,010 miles and tossed about by adverse winds, the party was picked up by the steamship Trent, 375 miles east of Cape Hatteras, half way between New York and Bermuda. The dirigible was abandoned at sea.

Harry G. Hawker, a British aviator, and Lieutenant Commander Mackenzie Grieve, of the British navy, in a heavier-than-air machine, started from St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 18, 1919, on a non-stop flight to Ireland. The attempt was regarded generally as the most daring of them all up to that time. Hawker and Grieve, after many hours of peril in the air and struggling against stormy conditions, were rescued in mid-ocean by the Danish steamship Mary, May 19. Hawker was killed July 12, 1921, when the gasoline tank on his machine exploded while he was making a landing at Hendon, England, flying field.

Modern Efforts.

All these modern efforts to conquer the Atlantic aloft, as well as before it and after, in striking contrast to the slow progress made in ocean navigation during the preceding 400 years. The era of sails had continued without particular improvement from the days of Columbus until 1819, when the Savannah, a vessel of 350 tons, with a length of 98 feet, crossed from Savannah, Georgia, to Liverpool in 29 days. Her engines, however, were purely auxiliary, she was equipped with full sail power, and when the wind was fair or the sea was calm for steaming, the paddle wheels were detached and hauled to the deck.

The first real transatlantic services by steam power were undertaken by the steamships Scotia and City of Western. The Scotia left Portland, June 4, 1875, and was followed in due time by the Great Western. They arrived in New York Harbor within twenty-four hours of each other, the Scotia completing the trip in eighteen days and the City of Western in fourteen.

The contrast between the voyage of the Savannah, however, produced ocean liners as broad as the entire voyage was long. The Leviathan, for instance, one of the largest of modern steamships, is 920 feet long, 100 feet broad and has a registered tonnage of 54,282.

Hotel Meeting Tomorrow.

There are approximately two-thousand of these subscribers. The company proposes to erect a fireproof hotel building in Marion.

NEW GUINEA LAND OF SEA-BATHING GHOSTS

Probably Most Unspoiled Savage Country in Existence.

GREAT OUTDOOR SPORT IS HEAD COLLECTION

New Guinea Is Exceeded in Size Among the Islands Only by Greenland.

Washington, Aug 25— "The huge island of New Guinea is probably the most unspoiled savage country in existence today," says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic society in regard to the island the former German portion of which recently has been placed under the control of Australia by the league of nations.

"Holland, Great Britain and Germany, who divided the island among them—on paper—in 1885 have done little more than place tenuous fringe of outposts and missions along the coast. The spacious interior has been left largely to the numerous wild tribes whose chief outdoor sport is collecting human heads and not infrequently make cannibal feasts off the remainder of their enemies' anatomy.

"This out-of-the-way island, with its thousands of square miles of unexplored territory, has been and continues to be an interesting field to the geographer, the naturalist and the anthropologist as well as to politicians, state-men and traders. Counting Australia as a continent, New Guinea is exceeded in size among the islands only by Icy Greenland; and it may therefore be said to be the largest island in the world which supports a considerable population.

Big As Half Dozen States.

"This huge island of the tropic seas covers a greater area than half a dozen or more commonwealths of the United States. If it could be laid down with its southeastern point at Norfolk, Virginia, it would extend across Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and most of North Dakota, its northwestern point resting near the Canadian border not far from the Montana line. And at its greatest width it would extend from near the northern end of Lake Michigan to a point just south of Terre Haute, Indiana. The area is close to 300,000 square miles.

"Australia has a keen interest in New Guinea for it lies hardly a hundred miles to the north, and the strait separating the two lands is dotted with small islands. Since 1906 the southwestern quarter of the island has been a territory of the federal government of Australia, and the recent action of the league of nations now gives the commonwealth jurisdiction over more than half the island.

"The costal regions of New Guinea—practically the only portions well known—are typical tropical lands and, as might be expected, are not particularly healthful. The mountains of the interior reach a considerable height, one peak in the Dutch portion of the island being more than 500 feet higher than Mt. Whitney, the highest peak in the United States proper.

Must Live off Ground.

"Where the Papuans, the natives of New Guinea, originated is an unsettled point among ethnologists. The inhabitants of most of the adjacent islands are relatively fair, straight-haired Malays, but the Papuans are black, woolly-haired negroes like those of the far-away Guinea coast of Africa. It was because of this similarity that the name, New Guinea, was given to the island. Some of the Papuans have become mixed with Malays so that numerous racial gradations exist.

"The Papuan seems to demand an elevated home. Throughout the northern and eastern portion of the islands the houses—many of them vast communal dwellings—are erected on piles. In the southwestern section many of the native tribes live in rude huts built in trees.

"Though on the whole as savage as any people in the world, the Papuans are not devoid of good traits. Some of the tribes have a reputation for cleanliness and the spirit of their religion is one of love to bathe. They therefore carefully construct paths leading from each grave to the sea, some of the communities near the northeast coast are literally 'villages beautiful.' They are clean-swept, with streets sanded and planted with ornamental shrubs. In the center are little 'plazas' or 'palaver spots' where conferences are held. These are paved with flat stones beside which are erected stone pillars to serve as back-rests.

"The animal life of New Guinea, like that of Australia, is queer to western eyes and represents the fauna of ancient geological ages. With the exception of the pig, which was probably introduced from Asia, all the beasts are either marsupials having pockets like the opossum, or else lay eggs like birds. But in the number and beauty of its birds New Guinea surpasses many other portions of the earth's surface. It is the home of the gorgeously colored bird-of-paradise and the ingenious and romantic bowerbird. Bird skins make up one of the important exports of the island."

IN COMMON PLEAS

More Definite and Certain.

A motion to require the plaintiff to make his petition definite and certain by setting up the acts of alleged fraud was filed by the defendant in the common pleas court today in the suit of Charles O Stoll, guardian of Sara J Stoll, against Harry Stoll. The suit is an action to set aside a deed. The motion was filed through Attorney L. E. Myers.

After Fifty Years.

William Idelman, of Portland, Oregon, and G. W. Millhouse, of Ballentine avenue, met today for the first time in fifty years. Their last meeting was when they were boys attending school at Idelman's corner, six miles south of Marion. Mr. Idelman is visiting with friends in Marion.

Smallest Bank in the World

There is a saying among country people that "the smaller the bank the safer the money," and therefore the Wake County Savings bank, at Raleigh, N. C., should be the safest bank in America, since it is the smallest.

Of course, it is a trifle larger than a sock and easier to get money out of than the tin banks or the china pigs of one's childhood, but it manages to gather in a very great deal of money in the minimum space.

As a matter of fact, originally the space occupied by the bank was a hallway into the building back of it. Some changes in the architecture of the place made the hallway unnecessary, and so the savings bank decided on an "office" there. Now it is a "regular bank," with an imposing entrance—and that is about all. Its frontage, to be exact, is 7½ feet.

"Bachelor of Commerce."

The plan of the University of London to grant degrees in commerce is attracting much attention. Under this scheme it is proposed to grant the degree of bachelor of commerce to candidates who pass the necessary examinations after a three years' course of study. Those who so desire may later proceed to the degree of master of commerce, after a minimum of two years' practical experience in the particular trade or industry taken up.

The first year's course comprises the compulsory subjects of organization of industry, banking, trade and transport; modern economic development of the British empire and of the chief foreign countries; elementary commercial law, and statistical methods. The second and final year will be devoted to specialization.

Placing Himself.

Luther Burbank, like Thomas A. Edison, has had his brain incorporated and capitalized. He has done many wonderful things, one of the biggest being the perfecting of the spineless cactus, which is a great stock food staple. Also to his credit are the Shasta daisy, the stoneless prune and the seedless grape. His patience is wonderful and they say that at one time he raised 50,000,000 lilies to get a snow white half-dozen that were perfect.

"No wonder they call me the wizard of horticulture," he said, "but I'm not a wizard. I simply have labored and begun. I may modestly call me the wizard of California."

DENIES POWERS OF LABOR BOARD

Pennsylvania Road Wants Order Set Aside.

APPLICATION SENT RAIL LABOR BOARD

Company Claims Right To Establish Rules and Working Conditions for Road.

Philadelphia, Aug 25—Declaring that the railroad management has authority under the transportation act to establish rules and working conditions for its employes, either with or without first holding conferences with its employes, the management of the Pennsylvania railroad forwarded an application to the rail labor board to "set aside and vacate" its recent order that elections held to determine employe representation of the shop crafts unions were void.

In support of its application the management holds that the board has no power to prescribe principles which shall govern the management and the employes in making agreements covering rules and working conditions, that the board has no power to compel conferences, or to prescribe with what representatives of employes the management shall confer, and that the board has no power to prescribe the kind of election or other method by which the management must determine who are the authorized representatives of its employes.

In addition, the application asserts that the labor board has no right to extend the so-called national agreements beyond the date in the transportation act, and asserts that so far as the Pennsylvania is concerned, the national agreements are wholly terminated and of no force and effect.

The road has endeavored to work out new agreements as to rules and working conditions with all classes of its employes, the application states, and has been able to formulate them with 140,195 of its 176,000 workers. To void these contracts, after they have been put into effect, the application states, would cause "great and irreparable injury to the road and its employes, parties to these contracts."

JUVENILE GRANGE HALL MAY SOON BE BUILT

By the Big Island Grange—A Meeting Last Night.

Big Island Grange, No. 1920, met at the hall Wednesday evening for its regular meeting. The attendance was large. Plans were discussed for the building of a juvenile grange hall. Walter Bricker was elected captain of the men's degree team. The program for the evening consisted of a roll call, responded to by imitation of bird notes.

A quartet sang "The Wild Bird," and a relay race and needle threading contest were then enjoyed and the awards were won by Lewis Gracely, Mabel Brady and Charles Drake.

A shot put contest was enjoyed by the juvenile, Miss Naomi Coon winning the contest. After another quartet selection, "The Farmer Feeds Them All," a reading was given by Lewis Gracely and a tableau "The Farmer and the Twins" was enjoyed.

She was a lovable woman with a charming personality and very well liked.

Mrs. Robbins was prominent in Eastern Star circles, having been a member of Lydia Chapter, No. 83, in which he had filled all the chairs. She was last year grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Ohio Eastern Stars. She was also a member of the Marion Shrine of the White Shrine of Jerusalem and of the Epworth M. E. church and its various societies.

Relatives Surviving.

Surviving are two sons and a daughter, Paul Robbins, of Cleveland; Mrs. Robroy McKinniss, of east Center street, and Harry Robbins, at home.

Mrs. Robbins also leaves a niece Mrs. Edgar Mohr, of Cleveland, whom she raised; two grandchildren, and five brothers, Ran, Budd, Foster and Frank Hubley, of Galion, and Elliflet Hubley, of Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania.

The funeral will be held from the home at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, with Eastern Star services. Dr. Jesse Swank will officiate. The body will be taken to Galion and placed in the mausoleum.

BREAKDOWN AT SCIOTO CRIPPLES CAR SERVICE

And Also Hits Users of Commercial Electric Power.

BOTH INTERURBAN AND CITY LINES HANDICAPPED

Short Circuit in the Wiring at the New Plant is Cause of Trouble.

For a little over two hours this morning, Marion was without any electric service, due to a short circuit in the wiring at the new plant of the Scioto power station. The trouble occurred about 6:15 o'clock and it was 8:30 o'clock before the local plant could be placed in operation to relieve the condition to some extent.

Many citizens arose this morning and were under the impression that certain lamps had burned out, but after a trial of all the lights concluded they had been cut off for some reason. They were not long in discovering the trouble was general.

During the early hours no cars were operating and after the old city plant was placed in operation, the patrons of electricity were given some service.

C., D. & M. interurban cars were operated for the time as far as Bellefontaine avenue and passengers were taken out on the city cars late during the morning.

C., M. & H. cars were greatly delayed through lack of power. The power for the operation of the interurban cars to Bellefontaine avenue was furnished from Stratford.

Men are at work looking up the trouble and making the repairs at the Scioto power plant, but the local manager stated this afternoon that he was unable to say just when the plant would be furnishing the power.

DONN F. CHAMBERLAIN WRITES OF MOVIE STARS

Fomer Marionite Tells of Great California Industry.

CHAMBERLAIN NOW IS LOCATED IN LOS ANGELES

He Visits "Heart of Moving Picture World" and Writes Back About It.

A little more than a year ago Donn F. Chamberlain, who was formerly employed in the job department of the Star, started from Marion in an automobile tour of the West. The tour terminated at Los Angeles, where he now lives at No. 3543 La Franco street.

Los Angeles is the heart of the moving-picture world and, having been connected with several enterprises dealing with studios and actors, Mr. Chamberlain has written some entertaining "chatter" about the game. His letter follows:

From Film World Capitol.

A few words from the film capital of the world, for such is Los Angeles today. It is conservatively estimated that eighty per cent. of the American motion-picture industry is located in Los Angeles and surrounding territory. There are now seventy-five producing companies operating in forty-four active studios in the city and surrounding territory.

The average number of employes is 10,000 with nearly twice that number employed irregularly. The total payroll is about $40,000,000.

The value of the annual output in films from these companies is $150,000,000. Probably no other industry has ever risen to the size and importance of the motion-picture industry in a like period of time.

Ten years ago it was in its infancy, but today it stands with a capitalization of $500,000,000, and ranks fifth in the United States, excelled only by agriculture, steel, coal, and transportation.

Says They Earn It.

Movie stars do make a lot of money, but they certainly earn it. Many a girl or young fellow who now envies the screen twinklers would sneak back to the old safe job at the typewriter or behind the counter if they had just one week of real movie life and had to live up to stellar demands.

Take for instance what Wanda Hawley was called upon to do in her latest picture; to row alone in a single oared racing shell; to do a vigorous dance in an orchard, to chin herself nine times on a bar, and finally to dive over an embankment in a flivver.

Rex Ingram, the director of the "Four Horsemen of the Apocolypse," has converted himself into an animated employment agency during the casting of his new play, "Turn to the Right." During the last week he interviewed and took screen tests of several hundred prospective players in the production.

Great on Perfection.

A film director whose name does not matter so far as this story is concerned, is great on perfection. To attain that degree of efficiency, he always rehearses a scene at least a dozen times.

A few days ago he was directing an actor, and following a series of tedious rehearsals the scene was "shot."

"You didn't do that so well, it was better the first rehearsal," he complained.

"Yes, I know," replied the perspiring actor. "I'm older now."

At the present time there is a demand for short two reel comedies. Exhibitors are asking for two-reel fillers, and hustling the producers to supply the demands.

"What's the Use?"

"What's the use?" That's what Lon Chaney said when he sat right behind a couple in a Los Angeles picture house recently and heard the young man say when they saw Lon Chaney do a thirty-foot fall off of a house in "The Victory." "That's only a dummy." Now, inasmuch as Chaney actually did fall and sustained injuries which laid him in bed for ten days, it's only natural that he was exasperated. "I suppose when they see me in the Goldwyn picture, 'The Penalty,' as Blizzard, the legless man, they will say 'Oh, he just had his legs cut off for this picture. It didn't hurt and they stuck them on again when the picture was finished." Chaney said.

Very few film stars have climbed the heights of picture land mainly through ability to "dance their way" as did Carol Dempster, former Los Angeles high school girl, who appears in D. W. Griffith's "Dream Street." It was at an exhibition of her dancing that Griffith saw and then invited her to learn the art of picture making. She abandoned a promising career and confined herself to a long and tedious application of studying the work before the camera.

It May Be News.

It may be news to you that—

Jackie Coogan receives each day a complete sack of mail.

For five generations Mildred Davies' male relatives have been on the staff of a Philadelphia newspaper.

More than sixty million feet of motion pictures were made last year.

One pound ground chocolate.

One measure of glucose.

White of a few eggs. Stirr well together to a smooth thick fluid.

"What are you going to make?" asked a curious bystander of the property man of the William de Mille company at Lasky's studio.

"Making some prop blood," was the reply as he vigorously stirred the ingredients.

"But that stuff is not like red blood," argued the one who had spoken.

"Yes, but who is going to know the difference on the screen? This stuff photographs more like blood than blood, itself."

The latest wrinkle in motion picture making is the transformation of an ocean liner into a complete floating studio, for the purpose of taking "sea stuff!"

Wesley Barry.

For the first time in his career, Wesley Barry, the thirteen-year-old star, portrays a "dressed up" part in "School Days." He has been seen as a cowboy with chaps, as a newsboy with ragged clothing, and as a street urchin with little or no clothing, but at no time has he been cast for a part that would require him to be dressed in evening clothes. Wesley Barry's life ambition has been to enact a "dressed up" role.

Daily Proverb—"Unless you wish your enemy to know your secret tell it not to your friend."

No nation appears to be hankering after the honor of being the first to disarm.

How times have changed! Here's Postmaster General Hays actually asking for criticism of his department.

What this old world of ours needs about as much as anything else is a reversion to common honesty.

A lot of people imagined that when the country went dry the fussing and fighting over liquor legislation would end but the result apparently has been to increase it.

If former Emperor Charles actually contemplates asking the league of nations to restore his one-time throne to him, it goes to show that somebody actually takes the league seriously.

Developing prosperity wholly through legislation is just about as near possible as legislating morality into people, and the latter is an absolutely hopeless task. In either case success depends on the efforts of the people to help themselves.

The people of Bavaria are reported to want a king, which once more goes to show the truth of that old one about there being no accounting for tastes.

Representative Fordney says the war department purchased 20,000,000 pairs of spurs between our entrance into the war and the signing of the armistice. Well, the war department can hardly be accused of having been a piker in any phase of the buying game.

While it is well that the country should get back to normal—to a situation where what a man makes and what he has to spend will be in closer relation—those who anticipate that either wages or necessities will soon, if ever, drop back to pre-war standards are badly fooling themselves. We doubt if the child of today will ever live to see the old order of things.

Where, a few years ago, the Chicago Tribune gave a full page daily to professional baseball and sometimes two, it has now cut down reports of professional ball to the vital statistics and doesn't give over half a column space to games in which the home runs figure, which permits the excess space to be utilized for amateur sports which, so at least the Tribune contends, do the greatest good physically to the greatest number. In the light of the oceans of space given to professional ball in the past almost to the exclusion of all amateur sports the view of the Tribune is almost revolutionary.

TO EXCAVATE CITY OF LAYERS.

With the granting of official permission, investigators are to begin excavations on the site of the Biblical city Beth-Shan in Palestine. The work is to be carried on under the curator of the Egyptian section of the museum of the University of Pennsylvania.

Beth-Shan is one of the most important of historic cities. It is in the valley of the Jezreel just west of the Jordan and not far south of the Sea of Galilee. At various times it has been the scene of battles, because it was the strategic point of entrance to any military leader in olden times who might aspire to world domination. Most of the builders of ancient empires sought at one time or another to conquer Beth-Shan. Among foreign invaders Greeks, Romans and Arabs in turn have held it.

Aside from its significance as the scene of many battles Beth-Shan offers treasures to the investigator. Arrowheads are in such abundance. It is fairly certain that here are lodged the relics of seven or perhaps as nine distinct civilizations. Beth-Shan, it seems, comes in layers, each new city being built on the ruins of the old. When successive waves of invasion swept over it there came to be reared in time a new Beth-Shan on the ruins of the old.

The relics which will be brought to light through this excavation will tell a unique story of progress of early days covering a period of more than 10,000 years.

THE GOOSE THAT LAID THE GOLDEN EGGS

THE THIN LINE OF GRAY.

Announcement from Savannah, Georgia, that if the confederate states' veterans hold a reunion in 1923 in that city, it will be the last gathering of the men, now dwindled to a "thin gray line," who fought with Lee and Jackson and Longstreet, has a touch of the pathetic. The "thin blue line" is seen in public somewhere each year, but the relative numerical weakness of the men who wore the gray is against their chance to imitate in public gatherings. There will be no reunion this year, which seems to be interpreted as meaning that if the gray old veterans are brought together again it will be for the last time.

The men who wore the gray in that bitter strife which drenched the South with blood and filled the hearts of the people with bitterness are historic figures, with the men who wore the blue. The active generation knows of them mainly through the reading of history. The thin little line which today is all that is left of the hosts that went into battle behind Lee and "Old Jack" give the world a perfect picture of the strength of human character urged by motives that were high.

Men never fought more bravely, with more desperation, with less selfishness, than the veterans of Lee and Jackson and Longstreet. Had they though more of themselves and less of the impulses that urged them forward, that gallant gray army never could have lasted as a fighting force for four discouraging years. It seems a pity that they should not continue their reunions so long as there are two bent old men to represent the thousands who are gone. And how heroic the last warrior would be to the people of Dixie!

The Indianapolis News claims that bread is selling for two cents a loaf out in South Bend. What is it, a price-cutting war or a conversion of the South Bend bakers to the beauties of philanthropy?

An exchange tells us that the average cost of meals in the Ohio penitentiary is five and a third cents as a result of quantity buying, but it's hardly probable that anybody will want to break in as a means of meeting the high cost of living.

LEAGUE'S LATEST GRIEVANCE.

The latest grievance of the league of nations officials is that their communications to the department of state at Washington bring no replies. The postal service can not be blamed, at least at this end, because it is again functioning now that Mr. Hays is in charge. Officials at Geneva can not understand the "discourtesy."

If the communications received at Washington are anything like those with which the league is deluging American newspaper offices, it is not surprising that they should fail to elicit answers. They consist of many printed pages designed to give the impression that the league is busily at work settling the affairs of the world and enabling the officials to draw their salaries, but analysis shows that no matters of vital importance are involved. For it has long been apparent that the league is not the big performance in the main tent, but a sideshow whose paid "barkers" are endeavoring to attract patronage, but in vain.

The United States can not take official notice of the league of nations because it is not a member of that organization. As people that feel like going to war do not consult the league of nations members are proposing to step up to the constant. Any war of threat of war whether armed or affecting any of the rights of the league of nations members declares a state of existence in the whole league and the league shall take any action that it may deem wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations. It is said that any member may withdraw from the league on two years' notice and be free from any obligations or responsibilities of membership.

The delay in getting started on an alarm proposition, owing to the refusal of the United States to join the league, is the principal reason that the secretariat's five departments have either failed to respond or would rather idle away days as if it did not care.

A few years from now the league of nations, in process of construction at the present writing, will be looked back upon as an old bachelor's hungry shack.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By Dr. James Ball Naylor.]

MR. MELLON'S PLAN.

Partisanship, apparently, has to enter into every measure that comes up in our national congress.

The men of the administration propose, but the gods of the opposition oppose.

Now the Democratic national committee gravely issues a statement characterizing the proposed bill providing to take care of the debts owed to this country by the allied nations as a "sinister and mysterious bill;" and it alleges the plan to be "a plan to swap our indebtedness, ninety-nine per cent of which is good, for bonds which may be worthless." This charcterization the Democratic committee borrows, without due credit, from an opposing speech made by Senator McKellar.

Yes the Democrats profess to discover a grave danger in the proposition to permit Secretary Mellon to have a free hand in conducting the negotiations which are to settle the ways and means of funding the principal and interest due this country from other nations. But wherein lies the danger? The Democrats do not deign to make that clear. They talk vaguely—and rather vapidly. Seemingly, they talk not to hear themselves talk, exactly, but to let the public hear them talk. Quite evidently they are in opposition to the plan simply because the suggestion of it comes from the Republicans.

This being so, it must gravel them somewhat, as dear old Mark Twain would have said, to have the New York World, the leading Democratic paper of the country, come out unreservedly for the project. Editorially, the World says on the subject:

"Mr. Mellon has outlined his plan of action. It appears to be wholly unobjectionable and to follow the only practical course open. Proceeding from the larger to the smaller debtors, he will first find out what they are willing to do and what they can do, in the matters of interest payments and times of maturity. No bonds other than those of the debtor government will be accepted; but an exception may be made of German reparation bonds. It is a condition and not a theory which the secretary has to deal with. This government can not hope to collect what the debtor nations can not pay; and a study of conditions among debtor nations will be necessary before definite arrangements can be reached."

Just so.

Indeed, what better arrangement can we make?

In the case of each nation, we must learn first whether it can pay at all, next we must ascertain on what terms and conditions it can pay; and then safe and satisfactory arrangements with that nation must be made.

What else can be done?

Has the Democratic opposition any better plan to suggest—any other plan to suggest, in fact?

None!

They just desire to offer opposition.

Mr. Mellon thus assures the American public: "I intend to collect every dollar we are entitled to and that can be collected. I intend to do it on the best terms possible."

That declaration is clear, and strong and positive enough, isn't it?

What more can we ask?

And what more could we get—should we ask it?

We sadly need to get the settlement of these debts arranged. Step aside, gentlemen of the opposition—and let Mr. Mellon get busy on the job.

In Siam are boys' schools which meet every day in the year and in which the classes begin at 4 a. m. and continue until 10 p. m., with three brief intervals for rice refreshments.

When Millais was painting the famous picture "Bubbles," soap bubbles failed to serve as models. So the artist had a sphere of crystal made, and from this got the necessary lights and colors.

Man can stand a greater degree of heat than any other warm-blooded animal. The hot room of a Turkish bath with its temperature of 180 degrees, would kill a dog or a horse in a few minutes, but many human beings can stand it for quite long periods.

The human body reacts quickly to changes of air pressure, because of the air in the spaces between the cells situated beneath the skin. When the air pressure on the outside of the body decreases—as it does before a storm—the outward pressure in these cells increases, and in the cases of persons suffering from rheumatism or gout, causes additional pain.

Columbus, August 23, 1921.

Who Gets the Money?

Mr. Editor: Ohio folks are protesting the high cost of highways. They say the cost is excessive when it takes 100,000 bushels of corn to build one mile of road.

State Highway Commissioner Herrick says the price of road material is the cause of high-cost roads. Which road material does Mr. Herrick refer to?

Mr. Herrick, in March, 1921, in Darke county, sold six mile of brick road that will cost the taxpayers $58,765 per mile. For the stone and gravel in this road the pit and quarrymen will receive $1,500 per mile. Mr. Herrick should tell the public who gets the difference between the $1,500 paid for stone and the $58,765 paid by the taxpayers. The stone is the biggest part of a road and is one of the smallest cost items of the road.

In February, 1921, the state highway department sold six mile of concrete road in Clark county, Ohio, at $50,000 per mile. For the stone and gravel in this road the pit and quarrymen will receive $7,000 per mile. Who gets the other $47,000 per mile which this road costs? The stone and gravel in this road is the biggest part of the road and costs the least.

Senator Brand who is fighting high cost roads, should show Ohio people who gets the big chunks of money. He should make it plain that the stone and gravel men are not robbing or raiding the taxpayer.

Highway commissioner Herrick should explain why Franklin county, Ohio, is paving and half-soling the old road bed and building some of the finest roads in Ohio at less than $12,000 per mile cost to the taxpayer.

Every taxpayer and road user should demand an answer to the question, "Who gets the money?"

The main track was cleared shortly after the wreck took place and the wrecking crew cleared away the debris today beginning early this morning.

The work of cleaning up was greatly hindered by the large amount of coal which was piled up on the track by the wrecking of the cars.

WELL, IT'S BEEN A GOOD SUMMER IN SPORT WAY

Tennis Has Been One of the Great Games.

INDUSTRIAL AND CITY BASEBALL LEAGUES, TOO

And Mercy, No! One Must Not Forget Marion Country Club's Golf Course.

(By FRANK D. WEEKS.)

Local summer sports and athletics are winding up to a close as quickly as the fast-fleeting summer is giving way to the crisp, snappy air, and the familiar odor of burning leaves.

Summer athletics here are largely limited to tennis, baseball and golf, the latter sport being only in a stage of infancy, since the local course was just completed a short time ago. With the awarding of cups, prizes etc. to the winners of the local industrial, church, and semi-pro baseball leagues and the recognition of local tennis champions, sporting activities for the three hot months were brought to a close.

Tennis has been taken up this summer on a bigger scale than ever before, the main promoter of the racket sport being the Marion Tennis club.

Edgar Thomas, member of the season's freshmen squad at Ohio State university, walked off with the singles championship of the club by defeating Howard R. Stoll, former title holder.

The doubles championship is being fought out this week, the three remaining teams in the tournament being Mane and Hane, Thomas and T. R. Allen, Miller and White, Thomas and Allen having already won their final bracket.

In the industrial baseball league, the Marion Steam Shovel team is leading the field by a big margin and will, in all probability, carry off the honors, with the Commercial Steel outfit bringing in a lazy second.

The city baseball outfit has made an enviable record.

As to golf, the members of the Marion Country club are pelting the white rubber pill over the temporary five-hole course, the course of nine holes being incompleted.

With the termination of the hot-weather sports, many enthusiastic fans are looking forward to the initial blast of the referee's whistle at the football opener next fall and some of the far-seeing ones are even beginning to formulate dope for the cage sport.

HOME BUILDERS ELECT OFFICERS FOR A YEAR

Speaker Would Have Homes Replace Apartments.

Cedar Point, O., Aug. 25.—"Keep American youths American homes if you would have them grow up thrifty and be a benefit to the nation," declared William M. Lewis, chief of educational service of the United States chamber of commerce, in an address here today before 500 building and loan association officials. He said the change from the American home to apartment and hotel life already has put its mark upon the economic training of the youth of America. Lewis stated there was a shortage of 150,000 homes in the United States, and that it would take three more years if home building was resumed on a pre-war basis to catch up in the number of homes needed.

The Ohio Building Association league concluded its thirty-third annual session by electing J. M. Pogue of Cincinnati, president, and re-electing James M. Devine, Columbus, secretary.

BOOTLEGGERS UNDER ARREST IN NEW YORK

Three Liquor Rings Are Found by Revenue Officers.

New York, Aug. 25.—A special investigation force sent to New York by the department of internal revenue has found evidence of three big separate whisky rings operating in the belief that they are "practically immune from the law," said a statement made public here by Howard R. Kinnack, head of the force.

So far, Mr. Kinnack said, the investigators have uncovered evidence which they consider sufficient to cause indictment of about 100 alleged bootleggers. A couple of liquor permits now being made indicates many more dealers in liquor will fall into the net, he declared.

Mr. Kinnack declared he expected to see "persons high in the business and social life of New York and high and low officials, past and present" implicated in liquor frauds before the investigation was completed.

Federal Attorney Collier of Brooklyn announced the arrest of a woman and five men who, he said, had sold enormous quantities of liquor to New York and Long Island hotels and restaurants.

ABOUT 3,000 PEOPLE AT MERCHANTS' PICNIC

Which Is Declared One of Best Yet Held.

CONTESTS ALL AFFORD LOT OF ENTERTAINMENT

Baker's Concert Band Furnishes Splendid Program—Winners of Various Contests.

The fifth merchants' picnic held at Lincoln park, Wednesday afternoon and evening, drew a crowd of at least 2,000 people and was one of the most entertaining yet held. The hosts were the jewelers, druggists, insurance men and realtors of the association and the crowd in the afternoon was the largest that has attended any of the outings.

It was an ideal picnic day and many took their dinners and spent most of the day at the park, while the luncheers in the evening had to wait turns for benches and tables. The program in the afternoon opened with the baseball game between a team composed of insurance men and a picked team representing the druggists, jewelers and realtors. The game was called at the end of the fifth inning with the insurance men on the short end of a twenty-five to eleven score.

Much Entertainment.

The contests followed and afforded much entertainment for the large crowd, while the best of efforts were put forth by those in charge and the police officers to keep the crowd in check so as to afford a view of the events from the stand. The contests were rushed as rapidly as possible and the picnickers had plenty of daylight by which to eat.

Many who were unable to get out until supper or after swelled the afternoon crowd for the band concert in the evening. Baker's band, under the direction of N. G. Irvin, rendered a pleasing program.

List of Events.

The list of events and winners of contestants in the afternoon were as follows:

Tricycle race for children under seven years of age, first award of three dollars to Raymond Gosnell, of Fahey street, and second award of two dollars to Arthur Bickness, of Grand avenue.

Seventy-five yard dash for boys from ten to twelve years, coin purse won by Richard Tuttle, of Flos avenue.

High jump for boys from twelve to fourteen years of age, baseball won by Robert Smart of east George street.

Wheelbarrow race for boys from twelve to fifteen years of age, flash lights won by Charles Peifer, of Carhart street, and Samuel Brown, of Wilson avenue.

Seventy-five yard dash for girls from fourteen to eighteen years of age, fountain pen won by Leona Hull, of Davids street.

Running high jump for girls from twelve to fifteen years of age, ever-sharp pencil won by Dolores Lewis, of Oak street.

High jump for men over twenty-one years, pipe won by John Woodruff, of east Church street.

Ball throwing contest for women and girls over eighteen, cutex outfit won by Mrs. W. F. Gast, of north Main street.

DETENTION HOME DAMAGED TO THE EXTENT OF $1,500

Colored Lad Held in the County Jail.

Damage amounting to aproximately $1,500 was done by the fire at the Bain Detention home, No. 182 Wallace street, Wednesday afternoon. The fire department confined the flames to the two rooms off the storage room where the fire was started, but the remainder of the home was damaged by smoke and water. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

David West, fourteen-year-old colored boy charged with setting fire to the place, is a prisoner at the county jail. He was turned over to the police by Mrs. Bain immediately after the fire was discovered.

None of the sixteen children in the home at the time of the fire was injured, although four of them were asleep. One little girl on the third floor was carried out and three sleeping on the second floor were awakened by the smoke and ran to safety.

Wednesday evening Mrs. Bain stated she had released West from the cell in the cell-room Tuesday evening. The cell room is secured by an iron grating over the window and a door made of iron. The window frame shows marks where West evidently tried to force the bar with his fork during meal time Tuesday evening.

In the evening, Mrs. Bain said the boy placed a chair near the door and put his coat, cap and glasses on it. He kicked a hole in the wall of the closet, crawled through into the wardrobe of the next room and entered the storage room under the roof of the back part of the house where a quantity of bedding was stored.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Bain missed the boy and reported to the juvenile court that he had escaped. In the afternoon she had occasion to visit the room west of the cell room and heard a knock on the door of the storage room. As she opened the door, Mrs. Bain said West rushed out, nearly knocking her down, and smoke poured from the room. She grabbed him by the wrist, called the fire department and notified the police to come after the boy.

Mrs. Bain said West had no matches when he was placed in the cell room. The only way she can explain how the boy secured the matches is that he might have procured them from the pockets of some of her son's clothes, which were hanging in the closet entered by West after he kicked a hole through the wall.
